MORMONS AND CITIZENSHIP.

Commenting upon the Mormon question the Los Angeles Evening Post (Democratic) says:

That plague spot on the institutions of our land, Mormonism, threatens a new danger. The election in Utah resulted in an overwhelming victory for the Mormon candidate for Congress. In review of this result and the Republican reverses throughout the country, the theory is now entertained in Utah that the Mormons actually control the vote of the Territory, and the senators and congressmen in exchange for Statehood.

The Republican press of Salt Lake City says that they would undoubtedly carry out their agreement if the Republican government would make the bargain. In view of the menace to Utah the Salt Lake papers urge that there must be no party politics in the Territory until the Mormons are routed and the people thoroughly Americanized.

This new menace seems to outsiders observers entirely idle, but in Utah it is regarded as a real danger, and is met by the press in the highest public spirit, regardless of partisan consideration. We give the Republican party credit for more real patriotism than to believe that it would seriously entertain such a proposal for an instant.

It is by no means impossible that the recent sudden public abandonment of polygamy by the leaders of the Mormon Church may have been with some such idea as this in view. But probably not a score of people throughout the states believed that, however remarkable and rapid their conversion, the older members at least of the church were at heart sincere.

There is no party in the United States that would dare to encounter the public opprobrium of political affiliation with Mormonism.

Like many other papers in the land that are not fully acquainted with the Mormon evil, the Post does not speak as intelligently upon the subject as it is wont to do on other subjects. In its closing paragraph it says: "No party would dare to encounter the public opprobrium of political affiliation with Mormonism." And yet, in face of this fact, the Democratic party in the Post's neighboring Territory of Arizona, openly espouses the cause of Mormonism. It is true that there are many good Democrats who oppose such a course, but the party leaders and the party press, upholding and sustaining Mormonism, and Marcus A. Smith, the Delegate to Congress, endorsed an introduction to a political meeting in Graham County, in which he was held up as "The man who introduced the Book of Mormon and Covenants into Congress."

The REPUBLICAN has been held up by the Democratic press of Arizona as intensely partisan because of its bold stand against Mormonism. The question is not a partisan one at all. It involves questions of greater moment than mere partisanship; it involves questions affecting the very life blood of this Nation. It is only partisan in the same manner that the question of slavery was partisan. The editor of THE REPUBLICAN was sent into Utah and Idaho several years ago to investigate and report upon the Mormon evil, and although impressed in favor of the Mormons at first, his investigations showed him later that the whole institution was rotten to the core. There is something higher than partisanship in his warfare. There is a mighty principle involved, as great as that for which his ancestors fought more than a century ago, when the United States became a Nation.

Some of the Democratic press of Arizona have said, "Why don't THE REPUBLICAN oppose the right of franchise to the Mormons of Wyoming?" ignoring the fact that THE REPUBLICAN has many times used language similar to that in its issue of September 25, when in speaking of the Mormon vote in Wyoming, it said:

Every intelligent man knows that no instructions would ever have been given the Mormons of Wyoming to vote. The Republican ticket except on an understanding with some one. We believe that understanding was with Mr. Carey, the present Delegate to Congress from Wyoming, and that when he becomes a Senator from the new State he will represent the Mormon Church as ably as Mr. Carey of Utah does. THE REPUBLICAN holds it is an infamous shame to permit the franchise in the hands of men to be used in that way, we care not what ticket they vote.

This represents the position of THE REPUBLICAN today just as it did then and always has since its birth. It represents the position of all honest men upon this subject who have devoted any attention to it, it matters not what their politics may be.

We can understand a people voting solidly under great political or other excitement like that which affected the North and South in 1860. But what was there in 1884, 1886 and 1888 before the Mormon question had been discussed in Arizona to cause that organization to vote as a solid body in this Territory? Why, if not under the direction of the priesthood, should they vote the solid Democratic ticket in Arizona and Idaho and the solid Republican ticket in Colorado and Wyoming? Why should their vote be for sale or trade at every election in Nevada? They do not care what party they vote with. In fact the rank and file of Mormonism know nothing of political parties in this country. They know nothing of the Government of the United States. The only authority they know is the head of the Mormon Church at Salt Lake. There are hundreds of Mormons in Arizona today, who cannot tell who is President of the United States; who cannot tell how Senators are elected; and who cannot tell any of the principles of this Government, and yet they have sworn to obey and maintain the constitution and the laws.

They are taught from the very first inception of their belief in Mormonism, if they be adults, and from their cradles, if they be born "in the church," that the United States Government is their enemy. They are not expected to think upon public questions; they are not allowed to think. Not only that they are taught to obey—to obey the church, and they do obey.

It is but a few years since the highest authority in the Mormon Church declared his superiority to man-made laws, and asserted that the only law for the Saints to obey was that which was revealed through the prophets to the Mormon Church. This has been taught in their holy books and it is preached from their pulpits today.

Regarding the theory that the Mormon leaders of Utah were about to make overtures to the Republican leaders of the Nation for the admission of that Territory, the Salt Lake Tribune, whose Republicanism and loyalty none will question, says:

Congress will meet next month. Is it not about time for our friends, the Saints, to be making their arrangements to present their petition for Statehood for Utah? Are not their attorneys already at work in the East trying to make terms with the Republican authorities to secure Statehood? Are they not giving their promises to senators and representatives of the Republican party of three electoral votes in 1892? If this is not on foot, then all the signs of the times fall, and we do not hear from it in the next sixty days as rapidly materializing we shall be exceedingly astonished. That is something the Republicans must begin to look out for and must begin soon. Heretofore the Republicans have helped the sterling Democrats of this Territory to stand that pressure off as against the Democratic party. Now the sterling Democrats of this Territory must help the Republicans against an attack of the same kind, which we believe with all our heart is imminent.

It is a clear case that the Saints must get Statehood before the fourth day of next March, or they will be shut out indefinitely. Because after that, at least two years, there will be a Republican President and a Democratic House of Representatives, and probably for four years after that there will be a Republican Senate and a Democratic House of Representatives, no matter who may be elected President. The need of their moving at once is imminent. The old dream of Statehood, the old dream of placing their Kingdom among the States, the old dream of being able to dictate the terms of the Union, the old dream of having a Governor and Legislature, the courts, all the inferior offices in their own hands, with the sovereign power of the United States taken away, and with the United States unable to call upon her soldiers except by the Governor's request, that is still cherished, that is still being worked for, and it is a clear case that if it is to be brought around in the next six years it must be done in the next four months.

The attorneys of this good people, the Delegates, who are so gravely assured, represents the whole people and every interest in Utah, will be able to go to Congress this winter and say: "We have not done away with polygamy; are not we a peaceable people; are we not an industrious people; have we not harmonized our institutions with the institutions of the United States; how can you refuse us Statehood any longer?"

The date is set for the winter, and now is the time when the Gentiles of this Territory are to be put to the severest test. It behooves them to watch every day's work for the next four months. The "Mormon" began just now that no one can estimate the losses that would succeed. Progress would stop dead as a stone. The men of the East who are turning their eyes this way would draw a long breath and thank God for the good fortune that prevented their coming and linking their fortunes with this people. It would not be two years until there would be no more strikes among laborers in Utah. Instead of getting their present wages mechanics would be glad to get half of that amount, and then give ten per cent of that to the men of the Utah office. The world would not be a mine that would be safe in the Territory. And it would not be three years until the Gentiles would have to determine whether they would go away or whether they would stay. There is the real danger.

These are days when every true Liberal in Utah should be on guard.

As this question is not one of politics in Utah, so it is not in Arizona, notwithstanding that certain Democratic papers endorse Mormonism because of support rendered. What assurance have they that the Mormons will not turn upon them again, under direction of the priesthood, as they did in 1884? What manner of voter is that in Maricopa County who says, "I would like to vote for Judge Street," and who, when asked why he does not do so, replies, "Well, 'our people' must all vote the other way?" Are such "people" fit to hold the right of franchise? Go into any community in America, outside of Mormon colonies, no matter how strongly partisan, and can you find every voter in the precinct voting a straight ticket, under authority, without a single one of hundreds having the courage to vote for the smallest county or precinct officer not on the ticket he is ordered to vote? No place else can you find such a state of affairs existing.

It is because of this; because the Mormons are not loyal Americans; because they owe allegiance to no power save the church; because they have no knowledge of this Government that THE REPUBLICAN says their right to franchise should be denied them as has been done in Idaho. When they will become citizens in the fullest and best sense of the word; when they will exercise their rights as citizens and act as free agents and not as slaves of their priests, then and then only will they be fitted to enjoy all the rights and privileges of citizenship.

The crisis of the Messiah craze among the Indians of the Northwest seems to be now at hand. Crazed by the wild ceremonies of their superstition and encouraged by the worst element of their tribes, the naturally savage spirit of the Sioux is very apt to lead them to an outbreak of dimensions and ferocity never before known. Man for man, the Sioux is equal to a soldier in the warfare peculiar to the Western plains and mountains, and the fighting bands sent forth from the reservations might destroy the small number of troops at hand and then proceed to devastate the country for hundreds of miles. If the raid is made, no mercy should be shown the red devils when eventually captured.
